

In Home Catering

Would you love to entertain in your home, but just dread the thought of all the stress it involves? Is it your turn to have your family, friends, or clients over and you just keep putting it off because you don't feel confident in the kitchen, or you don't have the time?

Consider hiring a Cordon Bleu trained chef who loves to entertain to be your second pair of hands. I consult with each client to see what help they would like preparing for the party. Since I charge an hourly fee, you can utilize me as much or as little as you like. If you love baking desserts, shopping for groceries, or would like to make several things but not be responsible for the whole event, you can customize your event and just pay for what you need. I can also cater the entire event, give you detailed bills for groceries, and charge by the hour for the time I prep for the party, which is a more affordable way to have a catered event.

Based on your needs, each party is individually consulted and tailored to your specific requests. We will discuss and design a menu, and then decide what you would like me to do:

- Shop for groceries
- Prep the food
- Develop a detailed time line to help you put the party together
- Drop off entrées that you cook or reheat
- Table design
- Wine pairing
- Clean up

Sally James-Fast Bio

After graduating from the University of Washington, Sally moved to Paris for a year and attended the world-renowned Cordon Bleu cooking school. After honing her skills, she moved to San Francisco and started her own successful catering business and really had a great opportunity to entertain for some of the cities sophisticated residents. Living in San Francisco for 18 years gave her the opportunity to experience fabulous restaurants and attend wonderful ethnic cooking classes to add to her repertoire.

Sally was very involved for many years in the Junior League of San Francisco, and in 1998 was appointed as the Co-Chair for the cookbook the league was developing as one of their fund raising projects. San Francisco Flavors was published by Chronicle Books and has raised over $250,000 for the various charities the league supports, an accomplishment she is very proud of.
